

Evidence increases in capital murder case

BY TRACI BONNEY

The investigation into the weekend shooting death of Leon Howard "Wally" Wallace is continuing, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Travis White, 17, of 17380 Hwy. 603, Kiln, was arrested

Sunday afternoon around 4:30 after Wallace's body was found earlier that day. White was charged with capital murder (murder committed while perpetrating another crime). He is currently being held in the Hancock County jail without bond while he awaits trial, Peterson said.

Sheriff's department officials believe Wallace died between 5 and 5:30 a.m. Sunday after being shot above the right eye at close range with a 20-gauge shotgun. His body was found on Thompson Graveyard Road, about 1 1/2 miles west of McLeod Water Park. His wallet was found about a fourth of a mile away from the scene. It contained, among other things, $101 in cash and a $9 check.

Linda Curet, a ranger at the park and an auxiliary deputy sheriff, told sheriff's officials that White, armed with a shotgun, showed up in the park early that morning and used the pay telephone. When she asked about the gun, which is not allowed on park property, he is reported to have told her he had been squirrel hunting and was waiting for a friend to pick him up.

A red pickup truck later came by and White left in it, she said.

The next person to use the pay phone noticed a checkbook on top of the booth and turned it in to Curet. It was Wallace's.

The driver of the truck,

Michael Ray Ladner of Gulfport — White's sister's boyfriend — reported in a statement that White asked him to pull off Hwy. 603 near Robert's Reef, where White discarded something.

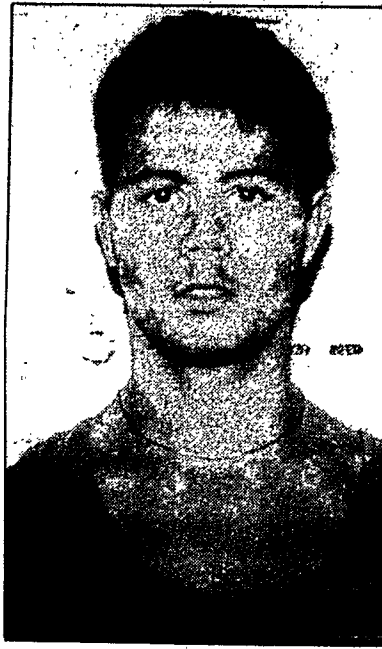

Sheriff's officials discovered Wallace's money bag, without the money in it, in that area Monday afternoon.

So far, officials have recovered $30, which White had given to his girlfriend.

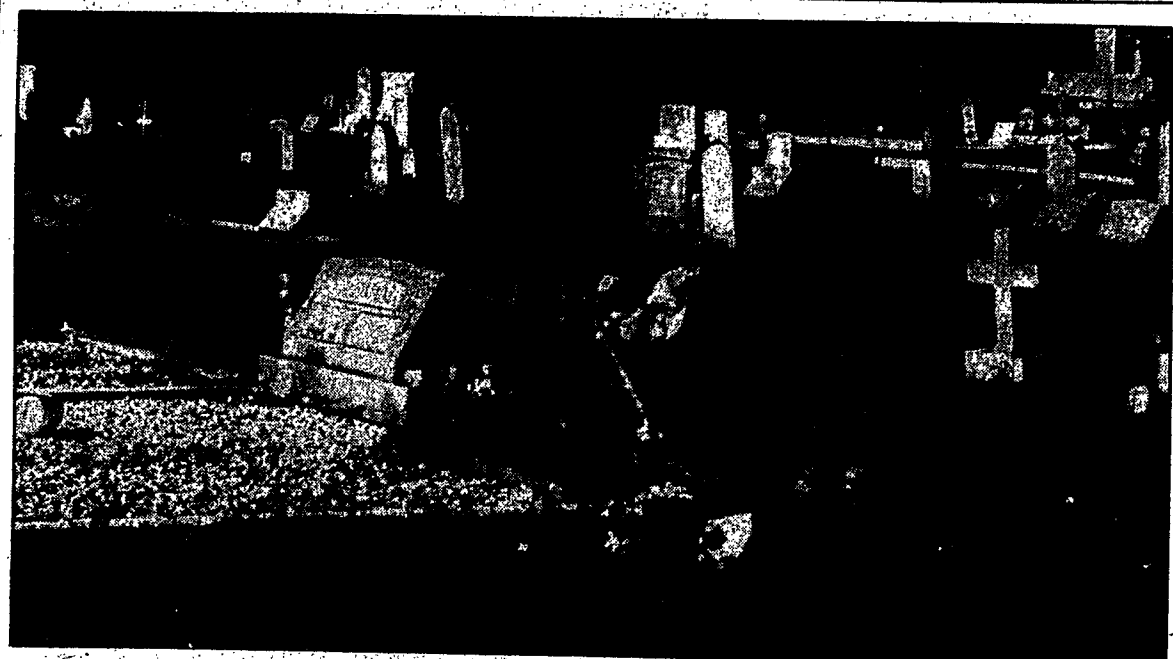

They have also recovered the shotgun thought to be the murder weapon. It belonged to a neighbor of White.

In addition, sheriff's officials have a .38-caliber pistol which they think is the one Wallace carried next to his money bag while running his cab service. They recovered it from White's

Scam

Local couple almost falls for 'son-in-jail' gimmick

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

How would you like to receive a collect telephone call on a Sunday morning, from someone saying they are bail bondsmen and reporting your son was in an accident and is in jail?

This is the type of telephone call a local couple received last Sunday. To make a long story short, it turned out to be a scam.

Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson, when told of the incident said, "This sounds like the same type of a scam I recently spoke about with Jackson County Sheriff Pope. It happened in his county."

"The incident was investigated, and it turned out the scam originated from inmates at Angola prison," the Jackson County sheriff told Peterson.

The scam tried on the local couple worked this way:

The telephone rings. The wife answers the phone. The operator says there is a collect call for Mr. A. Sr. (A voice in the background could be heard talking to the operator, saying it is because your son has been in an accident.)

The caller tells mother that her son has been in an accident. She becomes emotional and starts crying. Both husband and wife are over 65 years of age. Husband gets on the telephone. Caller is very courteous and tries to console father and inquires about Mrs. A.'s condition.

Caller reports that he just happened to be working this morning in his office, and the message came over his fax machine. He assured Mr. A. that his son is o.k., only that he is in jail and needs $500 to be bailed out.

Property taxes, park on supervisors' agenda

BY TRACI BONNEY

County Tax Assessor/Collector Edward Murtagh had good news and bad news for the Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

Murtagh has, for the past five years, urged state officials to allow property sold to the state during delinquent tax sales to revert back to the county so that the county can retain the revenues from the property.

The good news he had for the board members was that their support of his efforts was "making waves" in the state capital. He recently received information that property sold to the state would be advertised for sale locally after the required two years for redemption had passed and the property was deemed to belong to the state.

However, the bad news was that the only revenue the county could count on receiving would be two years' worth of back taxes. The money from the sale of the property would go to the state.

Murtagh asked the board to continue its support of his endeavors to get the property to revert to the county and the SUPERVISORS—Page 10A

Abusing taxes

Break intended for farmers being claimed for golf courses

BY TRACI BONNEY

While much of the state contends with the problem of agricultural land use tax break abuses, Hancock County officials are relatively quiet on the matter.

Throughout Mississippi, landowners can receive a property tax reduction if their land is classified as agricultural. However, the definition of what is agricultural land varies from county to county and often has little or nothing to do with whether or not any crops, cattle (or other animals) or timber is produced and sold.

More often, the determination of whether a parcel of land will be given agricultural use tax breaks is made on the parcel's size. In some counties, this has led to the designation of commercial development land (like that intended for subdivisions) or even golf courses as agricultural land.

This tax break is established by assessing the land at an artificially set value instead of the current market value. The burden of taxes not paid by agricultural use landowners is then shifted to home and business owners.

Although about two-thirds of Hancock County is given agricultural use tax breaks, County Tax Assessor/Collector Edward Murtagh said he does not think the abuse of the tax break is very widespread locally.

Murtagh said that when the agricultural use tax reduction was instituted, no uniform requirements were established

No injuries

The residence of Wanda and Roger Sprouse, 9067 Nyasa Street, was totally destroyed Tuesday morning in a blaze that started around 10:35 a.m. as a grease fire on the stove, according to county fire marshal Jay Marsh. No one was injured. The Sprouses' daughter, Melissa Neaise, was at the house with her two children at the time of the fire. She notified the fire department and evacuated the house, Marsh said. The East Hancock and Bayside Park fire departments responded to the call. (Photo by "Doc" Toups)

Deadline near to register for December 4 election

BY TRACI BONNEY

Residents who haven't registered to vote in the December 4 election have 2 1/2 more days to do so, according to county Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler.

Matters to be considered in the December 4 election include the 5th District Congressional race, several state constitution amendments and the ever-controversial issue of dockside gambling.

Metzler said those who have not yet registered have until noon Saturday to secure their opportunity to cast a ballot in December. The circuit clerk's office will be open from 8 a.m. until noon that day to register voters and handle absentee ballots for the Nov. 6 elections.

Metzler said, "There's so much confusion right now. There's a Waveland election and a county one November 6, a Waveland runoff election November 20, and the general election December 4."

"I would encourage local residents to follow the media and stay informed about when the elections will be and what will be in them."

She added that the circuit clerk's office will be open two Saturdays before December 4 for those who need to cast absentee ballots for that election.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The Pearl River College's Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center's business organization, Phi Beta Lambda, will hold a fundraising at the Walking Track on Saturday morning to raise money to be used for a Christmas activity for foster children.

Some folks may be surprised at the number of children in Hancock County who are in foster homes.

I think it is very good that the Phi Beta Lambda business organization from the Vo-Tech Center is undertaking such a project, and I am hoping they will be successful.

The group is scheduled to be at the Walking Track beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday.

This is the final week of regular scheduled high school football for area schools.

The Hawks of Hancock will get a strong test this Friday when they play host to highly state-rated Harrison Central.

The 4-A Class Hawks will be stepping up once again to challenge a 5-A Class school.

State-rated Hancock has only one loss this season, and it was to Wayne County, a 5-A Class school.

The Hawks have a well balanced team this season with an exceptional defensive eleven and explosive offensive punch.

Hancock can give Harrison Central a good game and could pull a big upset and move up in the state ratings with a victory, and this would be good for the Hawks going into play-off competition.

St. Stanislaus will close out the regular season visiting the St. John Eagles. The Rocks have been impressive this year, especially on defense.

The Rocks' record this season has been one of the best in recent years, and they need a victory over the Eagles to give them a good push right before the playoffs.

Stanislaus needs to take the Eagles serious, as they would like to topple the Rocks.

Football should be flying in Bay St. Louis Friday night when the young Bay High Tigers play host to a seasoned Pass Christian attack.

The Pirates, like the Rocks, have a very good squad this year, the best team in several years.

Bay High gained respect last week with their performance against the highly-rated Hawks of Hancock and could really give the Pirates a good battle. Hancock only had a 7-0 lead at the end of the first half of the game.

It should be an interesting game for the Tigers. I hope everyone will be out Friday night supporting the high school football team of their choice.

Oops! My fingers struck the wrong key Sunday, as the Hancock High School Open House is scheduled for November 11.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

The winds of change are blowing

Disturbing winds are blowing across America, winds that could sweep away government as we know it today.

The winds buffeting and battering state houses across the country are beginning to be felt in Mississippi.

The winds reflect a growing loss of confidence in government—at every level.

National polls indicate a growing distrust of the Congress as it wrestles almost hopelessly with the federal budget and the federal deficit.

Three states—Oklahoma, Colorado and California—placed on the ballot this year the question of limitation of terms for legislative service. In all three, the question went on the ballot by initiative of the voters.

The Oklahoma election was held in September; the proposed 12-year legislative limitation was approved.

Meanwhile, Mississippi's taxpayers are growing restless about a rising state budget deficit and an apparent standoff at the Capitol over a solution to the state's financial problems.

In Mississippi, there is a question before the Supreme Court on the issue of initiative and referendum, and there is conversation about limitation of legislative terms.

The winds of political change may not have reached hurricane proportions yet, but of a certainty, the breezes are being felt.

United Way Gold

Chuck Ramsey, president of Bay Tech in Bay St. Louis, encouraged his company employees to support the United Way by offering prizes for a drawing by participants. The 'Gold Award' will be presented to Bay Tech at the United Way victory in November for the 1990 campaign. The company had a 22 percent increase in payroll deductions, and more than 50 percent of employees are giving their 'fair share'. Shari Breedman served as campaign coordinator, with Bay Tech's contribution at $8,498.28. Those in photo, from left, are Fred Matherson, purchasing, winner of the telephone/answering machine; Terri Yetter, ESD Administration assistant, winner of 20" GE Color TV; and Jane Storey, QA manager, winner of a 35mm Cannon Sure Shot camera. The 1990 United Way goal is $110,000 with Tim Ryan as campaign chairman.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Mississippi offers many programs for senior citizens

One of Mississippi's most valuable resources is our senior citizens. I am reminded of it every day in a very personal way.

My mother is 81 years old and my Uncle Leslie is 93, and neither one of them shows any signs of slowing down. I am grateful that not only Julie and I, but our daughter Elisabeth can share in their love and wisdom.

We are all touched in one way or another by Mississippi's senior citizens. In fact, one in every five Mississippians is over the age of 60, and their numbers are growing rapidly.

I want to share with you some of public services provided to older Mississippians. Please share this information with someone you know. Also, please feel free to call the toll-free Governor's Service Line, which can send you a booklet listing senior citizen services put together by the state Council on Aging.

Many people don't realize, for instance, that we have a Senior Community Service Employment Program, which helps find jobs for persons 55 and above who are at or below the federal poverty level.

Transportation is a problem for many senior citizens, but there is help. Vehicles are available statewide to help older adults get to places ranging from dental or medical appointments, shopping centers, senior citizen centers and recreational facilities to food stamp offices, Social Security offices and educational facilities.

If an older adult needs help getting a nutritious meal or dealing with a legal problem, there are programs that can help.

If someone needs some assistance cooking and cleaning and doing basic things in order to stay in their own home, there are programs that can help.

Even if you are living with children or relatives and you need a place to stay during the daytime, there are programs that can help.

There is one other program sponsored by my office—the Magnolia State Golden Age Discount Program. Persons over 60 years of age can buy goods and services from participating merchants at reduced rates averaging 15 percent. That's a real deal that can make a difference to older adults on fixed incomes.

You can get much more information on available senior citizen services by calling or writing the Department of Human Services Division of Aging and Adult Service at 421 West Pascagoula Street, Jackson, 39203, 1-800-345-6347; or:

Hancock County Superintendent of Education Billy D. Sills is now formulating plans to build 22 classrooms at schools throughout the district. The plan incorporates the last of three recommendations listed in a 1978 capital improvement feasibility study by the Southern Regional School Board Association, which will cost the district $6,200.

The Mississippi Educational Finance Commission (EFC) has not received an 'acceptable' long-range plan from Hancock County School District in several years. Although the County School Board has authorized its superintendent to proceed with plans to construct 22 classrooms at schools throughout the county to alleviate overcrowded conditions, the EFC has not yet considered a local long-range building plan for the school district.

The great draft lottery which held the nation's interest on Tuesday, October 29th and in which 1,325 men from Hancock County were affected brought out the fact that two of the local men were among the first and second numbers drawn, namely James W. Bilbo, whose number was 153, and Roy Baxter, whose number was 192. The numbers were posted on the Bulletin Board in the Hancock County Courthouse.

The Bay High Tigers Rugby squad will tangle with the Rugby Cadets of New Orleans in their annual homecoming game in St. Stanislaus stadium, November 1, at 8 p.m. A big dance for the teams, old graduates and supporters will be given following the game. The Tigers, sporting new blue and gold jerseys are destined to get back in the win column.

OCTOBER 31, 1914

Sparks from a slab pit Monday night between 8:30 and 9 o'clock started a fire at the Westom Mills, Logtown, and destroyed Mill No. 1, with much damage to the surrounding plant. A high north wind was blowing at the time, and it did not take long to reduce the plant to ashes and a pile of distorted machinery. Heroic measures were embraced; everybody worked with a grim determination as it were and saved the new mill and great stacks of lumber which at one time were in imminent peril. Damages were estimated at $75,000 with the mill being partially insured. The new mill, which was saved by a line of 600 men strong, has a value of one quarter-million dollars. Before the crews of the steamer Pelican and tug Palto Pinto could leave the fighting fire line and get back to their boats, both caught fire and burned to the water line and sank. The Pelican was well-known to all travelers over the L&N road, a familiar sight at Dunbar, La., where connections were made for Pearlinton and Logtown. The Pelican was not a newboat. She was a 60-foot combined passenger and freight boat and was valued at $30,000. The tug Pinto Palto was valued at $10,000.

Hancock High hosts 72 educators from around the state Thursday, October 25.

Budget

"You would be surprised how much their (the students) grades have improved by the new surroundings," said administrative principal Donald Hillman.

Hillman told of student pride saying, "We have had one act of vandalism, so far, and the students turned in the guilty party."

The educators gathered to an aromatic dinner prepared by the cafeteria staff in the "Commons" building. After everyone was fed and comfortable, the bad news began.

Bit by bit education issues were diagnosed.

Funding for existing programs were said to have increased by "only" 10% in the past 10 years.

Decrease in transportation funding and a rise in transportation costs were said to be problems of mounting concern with the present rise in fuel cost. The formation of a fluctuating method was suggested.

Cost for support services, such as counselors, librarians, nurses, extra teachers, etc. were said to have increased 30% in the past 10 years.

Cost of textbooks was cited with transportation as the first area to receive cuts in funding. Set amounts, secured for each district, were recommended.

Workbooks, like textbooks, are subject to purchase exclusively from the state. Watkins told a story of a school principal who found a supplier from whom he could have purchased the exact edition book required for a particular class, at a savings from the state dealer price, but by law, was forced to buy the more costly state book.

Accreditation and certification costs are not paid by the state, yet the state insists the requirements are met and paid by the individual districts.

Salaries for professional levels were said to need a growth adjustment and salaries for teacher's assistants were needed instead of the present minimum wages. "Too many of our teacher assistants are on welfare and food stamps," said Watkins.

Employee health insurance was a large expense.

Peterson added that investigators Nathan Hoda, Delbert Seay and Matt Karl are in charge of the case.

Watkins claimed an average $370 per month, per employee, is spent on health insurance premiums. A call for an encompassing health insurance program should be a state concern.

Drop-out prevention and remediation funding was said

Child care facilities for employee needs and student learning was said to be under legal considerations. "Make it legal," demanded Watkins.

Voluntary consolidation procedures were suggested to counter-effect a district going to be necessary, as "40% of Mississippi's students are at risk, at a cost of $600 per student."

Technology funding (computers, etc.) was mentioned as needing an established entitlement per student.

Discussion on needed changes in current law to allow for reform in present educational needs were diagnosed, bit-by-bit.

Accounting procedures, dating from 1927, are still practiced. A call to streamline bookkeeping methods was seen as a means to save time and costs.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

Call me old-fashioned

Suddenly, I'm a Ms. I'm not impressed. Let me explain. Someone sent me a letter recently. The salutation read, "Dear Ms. Bonney". I can't recall ever being called "Ms." before now. I'm pretty sure I don't like it. You see, I'm not married, divorced or widowed. I'm a Miss, and have been all my life. I want it to be abundantly clear that I am Miss Bonney. Since women decided to liberate themselves (from what, I never did quite understand), the title "Ms." has become rather common. It was supposed to clear up confusion, and give all those liberated females a distinct title of their own.

It seems to me, though, that all it has done is create more confusion. Nowadays, you don't simply commit the faux pas (or "fox paw," as a friend of mine says) of mistaking a single woman for a married one, or vice versa. Now you may actually insult someone by calling her the wrong thing. Don't get me wrong; I'm not chastising the person who sent me that note. He couldn't have known my sentiments on the matter. (Now he does, if he reads my columns.) I am saying, though, that in some respects I'm decidedly old-fashioned.

I like it when a man holds a door open for me, or offers to help me carry something heavy. I like it when a man stands up, even if only briefly, when I enter a room. I think that, instead of treating a woman as a second-class citizen, a man shows consideration for her when he acknowledges her presence and femininity that way.

Did you ever stop to think that women might not have to go to some of the extremes we sometimes see to remind men that they are still female, if they hadn't tried so hard to convince men they weren't different?

Now, I agree with the concept of equal pay for equal time in the workplace. But if a man wants to acknowledge that I am different from him, I certainly won't stop him, as long as he does it in a polite and intelligent manner.

Please keep in mind that I said "different," not "inferior." I in no manner consider myself inferior to the male of the species.

Granted, I can't bench press 300 pounds, weld girders or even repair my car, but some women can do those things.

I have to admit that I'm not sure I like the idea of mixed teams in contact sports like football, but that doesn't necessarily mean it's wrong. It just means I'm not thrilled about it.

So, please excuse me for verbally flying off the handle, but we temperamental, emotional females do that sometimes.

At least, we old-fashioned ones do.

BACK TO NATURE

By Lydia Schultz

Fall, winter bring Brown, White Pelicans

Special to the Echo
By LYDIA SCHULTZ
After the flurry and exhilaration of hummingbird migration last month, I just knew this time would be ho-hum, (a little play on words).

Migration for all species of birds has been up and down. As weather patterns have changed, so have the birds' activities.

One change that deserves attention this time of year is our very own Brown Pelican. This special bird is one of the two Pelicans of North America. The other is the White Pelican.

Many years ago, Brown Pelicans were on every post and pier jutting out of the water's edge. But in the 1950's that changed. Because of man's pesticides, the bird was near extinction and to date remains on the endangered species list.

and Osprey, man stepped in and managed to undo our harm on an innocent species.

September and October also bring larger numbers of the elegant White Pelican which you can see soaring high above the Coast.

November 1987 an impressive flock of approximately 150 flew over my house. I was able to track their route the following week. How? Everyone from Pass Christian to Biloxi mentioned those Pelicans on Thanksgiving Day!

Occasionally they'll linger in the Sound or some other body of water with the Brown Pelican, but the Brown Pelican is the most common one we see.

Brown Pelicans make an impressive precision dive for surface-feeding fish. They look out of place on land. Their bodies are shaped—unlike most other water birds—big bill. They nest in colonies called rookeries and the young are very noisy while the adults are quite quiet.

I just thought we should all know more about one of our most common and beloved shoreline beauties.

Feeder birds seem to be getting a little more active. Chickadees and Titmice are scanning the yards and feeders in large numbers. Any feeder well-stocked with sunflower seeds (black oil) will attract them.

Get ready with a suet feeder and suet. Activity has picked up on mine and yours should, too.

Our usual Goldfinches have already been reported in the area. Not at feeders, through. Nancy Gex had one one gold beauty for a day or two. But that's unusual. It's still early.

Let me know if you see anything unusual. Keep your feeders clean, your hummingbird feeders up, and your bird baths clean and full. Good birding.

It is not known to nest in Mississippi as far as I know. Now that may have changed in the last few years, but it has nested in Alabama.

In Winter months, you can see Brown Pelicans bobbing in the water or sometimes waddling uncomfortably on the sand. Their perpetual smile always makes me smile.

Starting in October, the numbers seem to increase. That's when they have migrated from their nesting areas.

Numbers seem to peak in December. In 1985, 12 Brown Pelicans were an all time high since the 1950's and each year since 1985 has seen that number growing.

Once again, as with the Bluebird, the Purple Martin and bulky. But they are among the most graceful birds in air.

They can soar high and ride air currents along coastlines or alternately flap and slide inches above the water.

Here are some tidbits to add to your wealth of trivia: The length of the Brown Pelican is 41 inches with a wing span of 90 inches! (That's a big bird.)

The Brown Pelican is also quite common all along the Western United States, Florida, and up part of the Eastern Coast. We hold no claim to it.

While the Brown Pelican dives from heights of 30 feet for its food, the White Pelican fishes by wading in shallows scooping up fish with its large

Don't shock houseplants by mad scramble indoors

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Cold weather is coming, no doubt about it, but when the first threat of freezing temperatures will be is anybody's guess.

Threats of frost and freezing temperatures always cause a mad scramble to get the houseplants back inside. Invariably, we put the plants outside too early in the spring and bring them back inside too late in the fall.

If we're so anxious to have them out of the house why do we have them at all? Simply, because they make our homes look so much better during the winter months.

Take the plants out of a room and all you have is a room. Put the plants back and you have attractive indoor living space.

Most houseplants are tropical in nature, and that means that they are easily injured by temperatures of 50 degrees and below.

Some parts of the state had temperatures in that range for a night or two back in September, and it is possible that some houseplants were chilled. Chilling injury may show up as leaf yellowing and leaf drop after the plants are taken indoors.

Ideally, moving houseplants back indoors after a period of months outside should be accomplished over several weeks of gradual acclimatization to conditions and be sure to check under the pot rims and the drainage holes for slugs, snails, roaches and other living things.

Creatures brought into the home in pot plants can cause momentary fright when they hop or run across the floor or fly by.

In Mississippi Gardens

Sometimes you're not aware of bringing a hitchhiking small animal in until you find its dry and shriveled carcass under the sofa or in a hidden corner.

To reduce the chances of bringing something in with your plants, set pots and plants on an outdoor bench or table for a couple of days after washing them.

Generally, anything that leaves the pot won't be able to get back in. Don't leave plants that have been in the shade all summer sitting in the sun until you get around to bringing them indoors. Plants that have grown of lower light and humidity.

Most homes are too dark and dry for plants, and most of us just hastily move the plants from the yard to the house. Yet, with proper preparation there are many plants that will survive and even grow indoors, and visually improve indoor living space.

To prepare your plants for the move indoors, rescue them from the patio, garden border, or wherever you stuck them for the summer. Don't wait for the threat of a frost.

Thoroughly wash or wipe the leaves to remove insects, spider webs and soil. Remove any dead or yellowing foliage. Wash the pots during the summer may have outgrown their space in the home. This is not the time to practice any heavy pruning or cutting.

It may make the plant unsightly (but smaller for sure) and new growth induced by the pruning may be spindly if the light conditions indoors are not ideal.

To counter the low humidity in our homes, especially when the heat is turned on, plants appreciate misting with room temperature water.

As we move into winter and the water coming from the cold water tap gets colder, don't mist or water plants with this water until it comes to room temperatures.

Add some hot water to avoid the waiting. Plant roots watered with icy-cold water get chilled and the soil temperature is likely to remain cold for several hours.

Another way to increase the humidity of the air around plants is to set the pots on trays of moist gravel. The water evaporating from the gravel benefits the plants.

Be sure that every pot has a waterproof saucer under it to avoid damaging carpet, floors and tables. A pot without a drainage hole is one way to protect furniture and flooring from water damage but also a sure way to kill the plant by drowning and encouraging root rot.

Pots with drainage holes can be placed in larger decorative containers without drainage holes, but you must be sure to pour off any water that collects in the outer pot. Also pour off water that collects in pot saucers after watering.

Farm Bureau opposes reduction of supervisors

A constitutional amendment that could lead to a reduction in the number of supervisors' districts in a county has drawn opposition from the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation.

House Concurrent Resolution (HCR) 75, one of several amendments appearing on the November 6 general election ballot, was drafted to remove the freeholder qualification for the office of county supervisor and to change the existing constitutional language specifying that each county be divided into five supervisors' districts. The language is changed to read "not more than five districts."

Federation President Don Waller said his organization feels that any reduction in the number of supervisors in a county would dilute local representation.

"The office of supervisor is the closest connection our citizens have with county government, and to reduce the number of supervisors, even by one, would weaken citizen involvement and representation at that level of government," he stated.

Ain't it odd? Fall is perfect time for planting

Isn't it odd—the preconceived ideas people develop, even though other concepts or methods might be as good or better than those ideas they have always accepted as the gospel truth.

For that reason, I am going to break the traditional belief that spring is the only acceptable planting time for trees and shrubs. In reality, fall planting is as acceptable or better than spring planting.

Yes, fall is an excellent time to plant container-grown trees and shrubs. This planting time takes advantage of cooler working conditions (boy, do I like that) and also the winter and early spring rains.

By taking advantage of these rains, the amount of wasted time holding your thumb over the end of a water hose is greatly reduced. Besides, utilizing Mother Nature to water our plants is smart conservation of our much-needed water reserves.

One of the major attributes of fall planting is to allow adequate time for the plant to develop a deep root system. Folks, it is true, despite colder atmospheric temperatures promoting foliage loss, the root system will continue growing during much of our winter. Yes, root growth will continue until the temperature reaches about 40 degrees F.

The loss of leaves and continued root growth make fall an excellent time to plant the larger balled and burlapped trees and shrubs.

The natural leaf loss relieves the stress of lost roots incurred during the digging process. The fall is also an excellent time to plant spring blooming bulbs, herbaceous perennials, and wildflowers. This early planting will allow adequate time for these plants to develop their top growth and bloom the following spring and summer.

Of course, before you engage in the task of fall planting, there are some guidelines that should be implemented to increase the survival rate. These guidelines pertain to the areas of proper soil preparation, planting and follow-up care.

Proper soil preparation can greatly increase the chance of plant survival, improve plant growth, prevent mental duress and make weed pulling easier.

Yes, amending the soil properly is one of the most expensive processes in developing a landscape but is the most important. This provides the foundation upon which a healthy and successful landscape is developed. Believe me, proper soil preparation is money well-spent up front to prevent wasting money later.

Soil preparation begins with a soil sample analysis which will determine the chemical nature of the soil and will allow recommendations to be made based upon your soil and the specific plants designated in the landscape design.

To obtain a soil sample, take soil at random from the top six inches of the soil throughout the bed in question. Be sure not to include leaf debris and other organic materials that might bias the sample. About one pint of soil should be obtained from each bed. A soil analysis can be obtained from the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Once a soil analysis has been obtained, you should plow or break the soil deeply before beginning the tillage process, know where all underground lines (water, gas and electrical) are, or you may experience a shocking discovery.

Tilling close to the house, allowing the first tillage, move as much of the mow as possible from around the foundation of the house. Improving the internal drainage of most soils is crucial in providing an environment conducive for planting growth. A loose, well-drained soil encourages a deep-rooted and well-established plant that can better withstand inclement environmental conditions.

Improving the internal drainage of a clay or heavy soil requires the addition of clean, sharp sand (do not use river sand since it might be infested with nematodes which are plant parasitic worms) and organic matter—peat moss, compost, shredded pine bark, rotted manure, compost and rotted leaves).

Be sure to add about a one-inch deep layer of sand and a three- to four-inch deep layer of organic material over the bed.

Sand, the inorganic portion of the soil, tends to increase the porosity of clay soils and allows better internal water and air movement.

Organic matter is a naturally occurring material that also opens the soil and encourages internal drainage while holding necessary water.

Adequate levels of organic matter such as peat moss or compost greatly increases the water and nutrient holding capacity of sandy soils.

Therefore, with many of our soils be sure to add plenty of organic matter prior to planting and forget about adding any sand.

These two amendments provide a moist, well-drained soil that is loose and friable. So be sure not to scrimp on these materials if needed. Once these materials are added to the soil, thoroughly incorporate them.

The soil pH can also be adjusted at this time if it is necessary, but do not add your mixed fertilizer until spring since a heavy rate of fertilizer may initiate rapid, late growth. This may predispose the plant to serious winter injury.

When planting, there are several guidelines to follow. Even though you might be tempted to place plants close together, remember that these small plants will grow and mature into larger plants, so always follow the correct planting spacing recommended for the plant species you are planting, and be sure not to place them too close to the foundation.

The planting hole should be twice as wide as the root ball and about six inches deeper. When you are planting, be sure to set the plant at the proper depth.

Do not leave the root ball sticking above the soil, nor leave it too deep, but make the top of the root ball even with the top of the hole.

You can use your shovel handle for a level.

Another hint in planting a container grown tree or shrub is to slightly rough up the root ball or cut it on four sides with a sharp knife to protect the plant from remaining root bound. This will encourage better root development and a healthier plant.

When planting a balled and burlapped tree or shrub, be sure to cut and remove the wrapping cord. Loosen the burlap at the top, and fold down the sides to keep the burlap from sticking out of the hole. This prevents the burlap from acting as a wick and drying out the plant. Whatever you do, never remove the burlap completely or the small feeder roots will be damaged.

After the hole has been dug and the plant is properly situated, replace the backfill soil and firm it with your hand or foot.

A thorough watering is then required to settle the soil and to alleviate any air pockets that could rapidly dry young and developing roots.

Remember, even though the fall generally provides adequate rain, there are times that dry fall weather makes it necessary to water newly established plants. Yeah, I know what I said about conserving water, but believe me, you will spend less time watering a fall planting than a spring planting.

There is an enormous amount of controversy over when to water, how much water to apply and how often a plant should be watered, but whatever you do, be sure to water deeply. This will encourage a deep and well-developed root system that can better withstand inclement environmental conditions.

Trees that are less than six feet tall can be staked with one stake, whereas larger trees require two or more stakes.

Folds, be sure to strategically plant trees to avoid power lines, to prevent endangering the house, and to supply the optimum

If we hired people at Garden Park Community Hospital only for their proficiency in clinical care—how quickly they can give out medication, how easily they can fill out a chart or how skillfully they can bandage a wound, we could hire the same people any hospital does.

But we don't. We hire people for more than that.

We hire them for their proficiency in patient care—how quickly they can drop what they're doing if a patient needs them, how easily they can make a patient feel comfortable or how skillfully they can listen.

And because of that, we get the kind of people you won't find in other hospitals. People like Liz Covington who treat their Garden Park patients the same way they treat their family. With unqualified compassion. The utmost respect. And as much attention as they can handle.

State-of-the-art technology? The latest medical procedures? Employees who can recite their clinical care manuals chapter and verse? You can find those at most hospitals, including Garden Park.

Liz Covington? You can find her only at Garden Park.

"WalkAmerica" takes a successful stroll

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

March of Dimes "WalkAmerica" committee member Libby Roland reported the October 20 fundraising event showed a marked increase in participation by the community.

Total walkers for this year were 423, compared to 197 in 1989.

Total funds raised were $10,957, a 41 percent increase from the 1989 total of $7,775.

"WalkAmerica" drew 162 students from Bay High, Hancock High and Dominion Christian Academy.

Nine teams participated, including Hancock Insurance Agency, Peoples Federal Savings Bank, Merchant Bank, Hancock Bank, Coldwell Banker/Nell Frisbie Inc., GE Plastics, Hancock Medical Center, Coast Electric and Bay Technical Associates.

As a team, Bay Tech had the largest number of walkers (157) and raised the highest dollar pledge ($3,132).

Student walkers who raised the most money were Sherlyn Tassel, GE Plastics, first place; Stephanie Jordan, Bay High, second place; and Jamie Pate of Bay High, third.

The adult raising the most money was Andrew Ruhr from Coast Electric with $401.

Monies raised by the March of Dimes event will go to fighting the causes and results of birth defects.

March of Dimes headquarters in Gulfport reported 40 percent of the monies raised will go directly to the national headquarters in White Plains, New York for research into causes and treatment of birth defects.

The remaining 60 percent stays in the state to support in-patient aid needs (medicines, braces, breathing apparatuses, etc.), pre-natal education and participation in a national information network.

The cost of the retreat, which will be from 6:30 until 9 p.m., is $1 per person. Participants are asked to bring finger food and a Bible.

"Sentenced to Read" has successful first year

Special to the Echo

Young law offenders in Hancock County who go through Youth Court are getting the books thrown at them in the "Sentenced to Read" program.

The program, initiated by Youth Court and MINACT Basic Skills for Employment, was designed as a structured alternative to traditional sentencing for court-dispositioned youth ages 14 to 21.

According to statistics, many juvenile offenders lack basic skills and have limited marketable job abilities and low motivation levels. "Sentenced to Read" was created to combat these problems, according to Youth Court Judge Michael D.

Haas Sr.

Haas said, "The program provides remediation in basic education, marketable job skills, and an increased motivation level in participants."

The top two "public enemies" today — problems which seem to go hand in hand — are abuse of drugs and alcohol, and lack of education and job training, he commented.

"This is why we here at the Youth Court feel that it is so important to provide the children who may be having difficulties, an opportunity to better themselves. In doing so, they help to better our entire community."

During its first year of operation, the "Sentenced to Read" program had as its headquarters the Youth Court facility on Court Street. This month, it will move to its new location in the former jail facility adjacent to the county courthouse.

GE Plastics has adopted the project of readying the facility to house the program. Haas said, "We contacted GE Plastics several months ago, explained our plans and the positive effect our program has had on local youth. GE Plastics offered to renovate the interior of the jail for us as part of their continuing interest in the education of Hancock County youth."

revenues back into the county's coffers.

Bayou La Croix resident Martin DeSalvo proposed to the board that some of the property in his community that was dedicated to the county be used as a park. DeSalvo said the community has a large number of children who are resorting to less-than-legal pastimes for lack of a place to go.

District 4 Supervisor Wilmer Seymour stressed the fact that he and DeSalvo had looked at the piece of land in question 18 months ago, that DeSalvo had rejected the site and that Seymour had heard nothing more about the matter until that moment.

DeSalvo did not deny this, but explained that he had thought the land was smaller in area than he now knows it to be.

He asked the board if a survey of the land could be made, since a property owner near the proposed park is claiming the land to be his, has it fenced off and is prohibiting local children from using it to play or fish.

The board directed him to meet with Hancock County Recreation Department director Hilda Bourg so that the matter could be pursued in a proper manner.

Other matters addressed included opening and taking under advisement three bids for concrete for the county multipurpose building, and passing two resolutions on behalf of the Port and Harbor Commission at the request of Calgon Carbon Corp., which is considering locating a plant at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

One resolution was to affirm the right of access on, over and across the roads of Port Bienville Industrial Park by owners, tenants, employees and other authorized personnel. The other was to authorize the proper officers of the Port and Harbor Commission to enter into an indemnity agreement with the proper officers of Calgon Carbon Corp. This agreement states that if, after making site preparations for the proposed plant, the company decides not to locate in Port Bienville, the company will restore the site to its condition prior to the work. The board also heard, but held in abeyance, the pending resignation of Hancock County Wastewater District 1 director Richard Brehm, who in his resignation letter expressed a wish to retire. District 5 Supervisor Mike Ladner, who read Brehm's letter to the board, asked that the board not act on it until he could talk to Brehm.

Growing healthy babies before birth

Mothers-to-be, it takes about 85,000 calories to grow a baby—before birth, that is. Most of those calories should come from nutritious foods in your diet.

During your pregnancy, weight gain is essential to meet your own body's energy and nutrient needs as well as those of your baby. The amount of weight you gain also has an influence on your child's birth weight.

The total number of pounds gained during pregnancy varies among individual women. A normal gain for most women is 25 to 30 pounds. The amount of weight you should gain depends on your height, body frame and weight before pregnancy.

Underweight women may need to gain more, overweight women less. (A word of caution: pregnancy is definitely not the time for dieting to lose weight.)

Gaining too little weight during pregnancy may result in a baby that is too small at birth. Studies have shown that babies born weighing 5.5 pounds are much more likely to be healthy than smaller babies.

Too much weight gain during pregnancy can cause problems including an increased risk of complications such as high blood pressure, diabetes and a difficult labor and delivery. Excess weight gain also can result in very large babies (over 9 pounds), which are more likely to be less healthy than smaller babies.

During the first three months of pregnancy, weight gain should be small, usually 2 to 4 pounds. This initial weight gain is mainly from the growth of your own body tissues. After the first three months, your baby begins to grow rapidly, so that weight gain increases to about a pound every nine days.

Assuming that your physical activity level does not change during pregnancy, you can meet your additional energy (calorie) needs by adding an average of 300 extra calories per day to your diet during the last six months of pregnancy.

These extra calories should come from extra portions of milk, lowfat cheeses, lean meats, poultry, fish, leafy and dark green vegetables, dried beans, peas, fruits, whole grain and enriched breads and cereals.

Be moderate in your use of cookies, candies, cakes, chips, soft drinks and fat sources such as butter, margarine, gravy, fried foods, salad dressings and mayonnaise. These foods provide considerable amounts of calories but very few nutrients.

Your son's insurance does not cover personal property damage. You need to send $500 to Western Union at an 800 number at once, to so and so at such and such address, Mobile, Ala., the caller insists.

Mr. A's wife is still crying, and the caller again urges not to get upset and to console the wife.

Mr. A. finally begins to think that his son drives a company pick-up truck and knows it has all types of insurance. So he gets the caller off the phone.

Mrs. A. quickly calls her son's telephone number in California, and he immediately answers the phone. She and her husband are both overcome by emotion and the wife continues to cry.

After both Mrs. and Mr. A. talk to their son for a bit, they calm down.

Mr. A. after speaking with his son called the sheriff's department to report the incident.

Mr. A. said, the caller was so convincing, that if the son hadn't answered the telephone, Mr. A. would have sent the money, even though he suspected it may have been a scam.

The telephone rings again, and Mr. A. refuses to accept the call.

The telephone rings another time and the operator again reports it is a collect call, but Mr. A. says he knows this is a scam, and he can hear the caller hang up the phone.

Sheriff Peterson urges all residents to call either the police or sheriff's office whenever they receive this type of call and not to send any money until they are sure and have properly checked out any such matter with the proper authorities.

SHOPPING UP
A STORMBy Katy
McGuire Caire

Whatever else you toss into your shopping basket, these pre-Hallowe'en days, don't forget to pick up the "goodies" for the little "trick-or-treaters," along with a pumpkin or two for the Jack O'Lantern.

At least, I've usually had to buy two, to allow for mishaps in carving the first one! No problem with that, there are many ways to use up the leftover Jack O' after the fun is over. Of course, there's pumpkin pie and pumpkin bread and pumpkin soup and all that, but I shall make:

PUMPKIN CUSTARD

This old, old recipe is from "The Early American Cookbook" (Liberty Publishing Co., Cockeysville, Md.) and originated with the Pickering family. The first armed resistance to British troops was led by Timothy Pickering, a colonel in the militia, in February of 1775 at a drawbridge in Salem, Massachusetts. So, have a bite of history along with this old-time pumpkin dish. It calls for:

1 cup pumpkin, stewed and mashed.

3 eggs, well-beaten
3/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
2 cups milk, scalding
1 cup cream, whipped

Put the stewed pumpkin into a wooden mixing bowl and blend in the frothy beaten eggs, brown sugar and spices. When well mixed stir in the hot milk. Beat the mixture hard and thoroughly. Pour the custard into a buttered baking pan or 6 custard cups. Set in a shallow pan of hot water and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 25 to 30 minutes, or until firm. Set aside to cool and serve when cold with the whipped cream atop. (Six servings)

For a change from potato chips, try:

PUMPKIN CHIPS

Pare and seed pumpkin pieces, slice thin as for potato chips, and soak in ice water for an hour. Drain and pat dry. Fry in deep hot oil, or small amount of oil, as you choose, until browned. Drain on paper towels. Combine salt, pepper and garlic powder, and sprinkle over the chips until well-coated.

And, don't throw away the pumpkin seeds; they're quite tasty, and a healthful "munchie." Just separate the seeds from the stringy portion, and spread thinly in a shallow pan. Add a generous tablespoon of butter or margarine or oil, as needed, for each cup of seeds. Roast in a 250 degree oven for 20 or 30 minutes, or until brown and crisp, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking to pan. While still warm, sprinkle with salt and pepper and a bit of cayenne pepper—and you're a bit ahead of the game and the budget, for the seeds are "lag-nappe"—that little extra!

You might want to use some of that pumpkin to make a pumpkin-corn chowder, combining it with some of the corn and some of the onions from our area supermarkets. Broccoli is also offered at good prices just now, another good soup choice, for it's getting to be soup time, and the tang in the air makes one want to do some hearty cooking, doesn't it?

The soup pot's a-simmer at my house as I write this—traditional vegetable soup, with a nice-sized brisket and a heap of fresh vegetables and seasonings. With chunks of hot French bread, that will be my lunch. And for dinner, the brisket sliced and served along with horseradish and chunks of potato and other vegetables from the stockpot.

Beef chuck roast or steak is another good choice for the stockpot, and chuck's a special buy these days. I also like to cook a chuck steak down with tomatoes and seasonings, and from time to time cook a chuck roast in that way, also.

A friend of mine, famed for her good meals and her short-cuts, gives variety to her chuck roasts and steaks by using the canned seasoned tomatoes now available at our markets in Cajun, Mexican and such styles. She just puts the meat in the pot, pours over a can or so of the seasoned tomatoes, depending upon the size of the roast or steak, to vary the taste.

Beef round steak is another good selection from the meat counter, as are first-cut pork chops. I like to cook pork chops in a tomato sauce base, also; and I cut away some pieces to use in a pork stew with turnips and potatoes and other additions.

Whole fryers are another good buy, as are leg quarters. And, there are special prices on the little Cornish hens as well. Light calf steaks and roasts are also offered.

In the produce department, lettuce is down a bit in price as are mushrooms and radishes. (Have you ever added thinly sliced radishes to a stir fry? Quite tasty, I assure you.)

Those tangy, sweet red Florida grapefruit have arrived in the markets. Kiwis and tangerines are good buys, as well. Enjoy!

Praising effort

COOKING UP
A STORMBy Katy
McGuire Caire

The apple, that luscious fruit which first tempted Eve in the Garden of Eden at the dawn of time, has down through all the ages been a favorite food.

Apples and America grew up together, so to speak, and gave rise to the saying, "as American as apple pie." Apples have been symbolic of our American hospitality from the days when early colonists raised their mugs of apple cider in a toast at their favorite tavern, to hot apple pie and cheese, to an apple for the teacher, and so on.

As if anyone needs to be told, the new crop of apples are at their most juicy peak just now. I wish that I could bottle or otherwise capture the heavenly aroma of apples—a-baking, redolent of cinnamon and other spices; and a bowl of shiny apples on a freshly-waxed dining table gives a wonderful mingling of scents and hospitality to the whole house, I think.

And, oh, how many ways there are to enjoy apples, from munching them to salads to side dishes and accents to main dishes, to desserts, all around the clock. The Pennsylvania Dutch country folk have a special knack with apple dishes, from their famed apple pandowdy to their combinations of apples and sausages or other meat dishes.

It's quite a treat to wander through the farmer's markets in this region, with the delectable aromas and tantalizing displays of foods. Here's:

APPLE PANDOWDY

4 large tart apples
1/2 cup molasses
3 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 tsp. cinnamon

Your favorite biscuit dough.

Pare, core and slice the apples, and arrange in a buttered baking dish (shallow). Sprinkle the cinnamon over the apples, drizzle the molasses over, and dot with the butter.

Cover with biscuit dough rolled approximately a half-inch thick, slashing the dough in several places. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve with cream. (Four servings)

For an even easier version, substitute buttered fingers of bread for the biscuit dough. Line a baking pan, sides and bottom, with fingers of bread dipped in melted butter. Fill in the center with the apple slices, as above, and top the whole with more buttered bread fingers. Bake for 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven, until browned.

And, on a brisk fall morning, saute apple slices or rings in bacon or sausage drippings or cook along with the meat, and cook up a pot of grits to go along with it, all! (Copyright, 1990, Katharine D. M. Caire) to guide county tax assessors in determining who would and would not receive the breaks. The only concrete requirement originally established — that the land gain its owner $50 per acre from the sale of its produce — was deemed discriminatory and eliminated.

Murtagh said, "I had to come up with a figure, so I set the figure at more than 10 acres of land."

This means that anyone in the county who owns more than 10 acres of land can receive the tax break, whether or not their land is in actual agricultural use.

"The problem is that nothing is mandated," Murtagh commented. "We're told to do this, but not told how and not backed up by the state when we do it."

He said the problem could be solved by requiring those who want the tax break to apply for it in much the same manner as those who receive homestead exemptions must do each year. He suggested the applicants be required to show proof of farming activities, such as tax records on profits or losses.

"The tax break isn't bad. It was intended to help legitimate farmers," Murtagh said. "The abuse of the intent is what's bad."

Sen. Vic Frankiewicz, who introduced legislation that failed in the 1990 Legislature to iron out the problems in the tax break requirements, said the situation is a fairly new one.

The tax break was instituted about five years ago, he explained, and was designed to encourage legitimate farmers to continue farming.

However, as the problem receives more publicity, more instances of abuse are coming to light, Frankiewicz said.

He stated that he intends to review his proposed legislation for the next session. In addition, the Senate Finance Committee probably will introduce legislation in the 1991 session.

Frankiewicz said the two obstacles to establishing an equitable solution are that many people in the state don't understand the issue yet, and "real live agriculture people" are uneasy because they think the Legislature may eliminate the tax break entirely.

"We don't want to cut it out. We just want to restore some equity to the situation," he said.

LOCAL BRIEF

DOG VACCINATIONS

The Hancock County Humane Society will sponsor a vaccination day for all dogs Saturday, Nov. 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Day's Frontier on Hwy. 90 in Waveland. Each shot will be $1.

FINAL AUDITIONS

Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will hold final auditions today for its production of "Life with Mother Superior," the story of life in St. Mark's Academy, a good but strict Catholic school for girls.

Auditions will take place at 7 p.m. in the Boardman Ave. Theater.

"Life with Mother Superior," written by Jane Trahey and Anna Helen Reuter, is being directed by Marie Bernard. It has roles for two men and 25 girls and women.

CIVIL SERVICE TEST

The Civil Service Commission for the Hancock County Sheriff's Department will administer tests to Sheriff's Department applicants Tuesday, Nov. 27, 7 p.m., in the board of supervisors room on the second floor of the county courthouse.

Jerry Medford, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said in making the announcement that applicants are required to be residents of Hancock County, high school graduates and at least 21 years old.

For applications or more information, call Lt. Gloria Tardavouille at the Sheriff's Department, 467-5101, during business hours.

Tigers face Pirates

Special to the Echo
BY PATRICK MCKEE
Bay St. Louis will host Pass Christian Friday in the final game of the regular season. Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m.

Both teams would like to walk off the field a winner. Unfortunately, that is rare in sports. Though the scoreboard will favor one over the other, Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian can both hold their heads high.

It has been a year of building for the Tigers. Although they are presently 1-8, head coach Rocky Gaudin is proud of the progress his team has made.

"We have worked real hard this year," he said. "We are a lot better team now than we were at the beginning of the season."

"Our schedule for the second half of the season was a lot tougher. You might not see the results on the scoreboard, but the kids are pretty upbeat. We would like to finish on a good note if we can."

Gaudin explained that he would prefer to have a running game against the Pirates. "We are basically a run team," he said. "We have had to throw a lot this year because we would get behind, but I would prefer to run the ball 70 to 80 percent of the time."

Of the Pirates' ability to move the ball down the field, he said, "We will try to deter what they do best. We hope to establish our running game, and have our passing game complement it."

"The second part of the season does not indicate the progress we have made, but we have made great strides this year. We hope to make major ones next year."

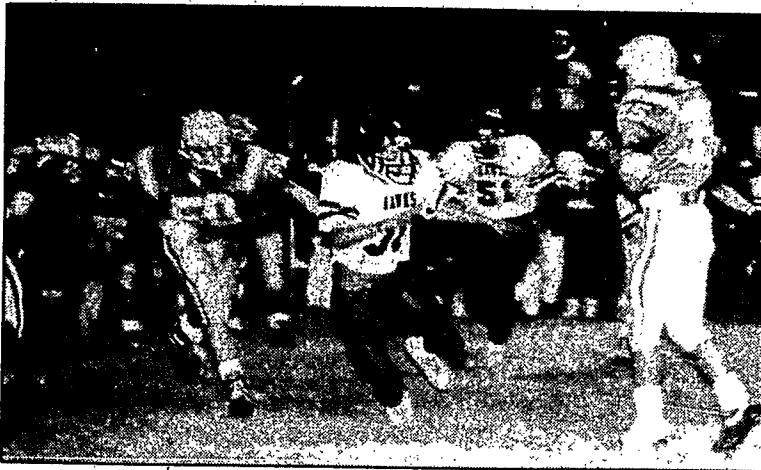

Pirate head coach Joseph Brown agreed with Gaudin concerning the Tigers.

"They definitely have made improvements," he said. "Their coach has done a fine job. They look like a real football team. On film they look real aggressive."

"We are going to have to do what we have been doing all along. We will have to have a balanced attack. It's always tough playing away from home."

The Pass Christian Player of the Week Award for offense against Vancleave last week went to quarterback Tracey Watts. The defense award was given to linebacker Jimmy Crawford.

SSC faces tough test

Special to the Echo
BY TOM ACKERMAN

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chows upped their season record to 7-2 last Friday with a convincing win over Pearl River Central, 38-13, but this week may be facing their toughest challenge to date: the St. Paul Wolves.

So far this season, St. Paul is undefeated with a 9-0 record.

At one point, Rock head coach Ken Lyons had predicted that Hancock would be the toughest opponent his team would face this season.

"I'm going to have to revise that," he said, looking ahead to this Friday's game. "It appears now St. Paul is the best team we will play."

Asked for specifics, Lyons noted, "They have such a diversified attack. They run very well and they have a speedster at running back and an outstanding fullback to go with him. They throw very well."

"They're using multiple formations," he continued, "and a lot of special plays to go with it. And, most important," he added, "they've been putting a lot of points on the board."

Hawks and Rebels face off in pre-playoff game Friday

Special to the Echo
BY BELINDA LILES

The Hancock Hawks will have a chance to sink their talons into the Harrison Central Red Rebels Friday at 7:30 p.m. when the Hawks host the 7-2 team.

Last week, the Hawks shut out the rival Bay High Tigers

23-0, while the Rebels added another win to their record by defeating number seven ranked Pascagoula by a score of 26-0.

Hancock head coach Irvin Favre said the Rebels are the best overall team he has seen on film all year. He commented that they are extremely exciting and very powerful.

"We are going to have our backs pinned against the wall this week. Harrison Central has the fastest backfield I've seen all year," Favre said. "They have two brothers, the Moores—one plays QB and the other is a running back. These guys are tough."

"This team is no comparison to the one we beat last year. We laid it on the line to our boys. We have a tough challenge ahead of us."

Favre stated that mistake-free playing and a few breaks would be needed for the Hawks to win, because the home team is overmatched and outweighed

Fireballs take soccer title

The Bay Area Youth Under-12 Girls, the Fireballs, sponsored by Take-One Video, took first place in the Mississippi Soccer Festival in Meridian last weekend.

Competition highlighted premier and large soccer clubs from across the state. The championship team was coached by Bernard Tusa.

"Going up to Meridian, I didn't know what to expect—from our girls and from the other teams," said Tusa. "The team has only been together for a month and played only two games before leaving for Meridian."

"This really shows they can play soccer," he said.

In the opening game Saturday morning, the Fireballs played the Northeast Jackson Sparks, composed of girls from the defending state championship team who defeated the BAYS team last May.

The Fireballs won 3-0 with outstanding defensive play by Andie Fillingame, Rachel Perniciaro, Kathryn Scaffide, Brianne Tuttle and goalie Alicia Gavagnie. All three goals were scored by Melissa Carver, with assists by Meredith Quinlan.

In the second game on Saturday, against the DeSoto Soccerettes, the Fireballs swept past their opponent 7-1, advancing them to the finals.

"Our defense and offense played extremely well, behind the good playing of Mandie French, Kate Martin and Lindsey Piazza," said Tusa.

The championship game was against the Northeast Jackson Classics, composed of several players from the select state champions of 1989.

"To win this game, we knew we had to control the middle of the field. We did just that behind good performances by Casey Bernard, Erin Favre, Carey Sahuque and Lauren Tusa."

"Our offense was led by Amanda Kingston, who kicked in the only goal of the game late in the fourth quarter," he said.

Tusa noted many of his players have been on state runner-up teams during the last three years, and hopes this may be their year to claim the state title.

He thanked the team members, parents, sponsor Les Fillingame and his assistant coach John Scaffide for their efforts.

Oyster season opening date set, season outlook poor

Oyster season in Mississippi waters will begin Nov. 13, but shellfish biologists project it to be a poor season.

The Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks voted at LeFleur's Bluff State Park to set the season opening date based on a recommendation by John Cirino, Bureau of Marine Resources shellfish program coordinator.

The commission voted to set the commercial oyster sack limit at six sacks per day for each licensed fishing vessel. The recreational sack limit for Mississippi residents is set by state law at three sacks per week.

No non-resident recreational oyster licenses will be issued this year.

Cirino said he made the recommendation after a public hearing held recently and on recommendations made by the BMR staff, oystermen and seafood processors.

Cirino projected that it will be a poor season this year with an estimated harvest of 15,000 sacks.

A sack of oysters produces between five and eight pounds of oyster meat.

Because of low oyster populations due to poor oyster development and high rates of oyster deaths, Mississippi's dredging reefs will not be opened for dredging or tonging this year, Cirino said. The reefs, located in the western Sound, include St. Joseph and Henderson Point.

Tonging will be allowed in Graveline Bayou and in the Bangs Lake area in the eastern Sound and on St. Stanislaus and Bay St. Louis reefs in the western Sound.

The Waveland tonging reef will remain closed this season, Cirino said, because of high oyster mortality on the reef.

The Bay St. Louis reef, located between the U.S. 90 and CSX Railroad bridges has been closed for harvest since September 1984 because the reef was contaminated by bacteria caused by sewage flowing from mainland septic tanks.

Cirino said he recommended opening the Bay St. Louis reef this year under favorable biological conditions after extensive studies showed that the oysters on the reef no longer pose a threat to public health if certain conditions are met.

During the studies, he said, BMR biologists were able to document the times and conditions under which the oysters may be considered safe for human consumption.

Portions of Cat Island reefs will also be opened for tonging, but oystermen fishing within 750 yards of the Cat Island Beach must have written permission from island land owners.

Water and meat samples will be taken during the season and any and all reefs may be closed if bacteria counts are high enough to pose a health threat, Cirino said.

High bacteria counts are usually caused by rainfall or river rises which flush mainland bacteria into the Sound.

Additional information on the opening and closing of reefs during the season may be obtained by calling the taped BMR hot line at 385-5902.

Bay tennis players win in fall Hattiesburg tourney

Myron Labat Jr. collected tournament victory number six for the 1990 ranking year by winning all three rounds in the Boys 16-Under Division of the Mississippi Tennis Association's Junior Circuit Tournament at the Hattiesburg Country Club Oct. 20-21.

Labat, the division's top seed, received a bye in the first round. He then defeated Kevin Brandt of Hattiesburg 6-0, 6-0 and Bobby Wilkinson of McGee 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

In the championship match, he defeated Mason Greene of Meridian 6-4, 6-1.

In other action, Francisco Corral of Mexico City defeated Chris Hopp of Hattiesburg in the finals of the Boys 18-Under Division by a score of 6-1, 6-2.

Edwardo Jimenez of Cameroon, Africa, defeated Teammate Ricardo Velazquez in the finals of the second draw of the Boys 14-Under Division. Michael James took third place in that same division.

Labat, Corral, Jimenez, Velazquez and James are all members of the 1990 St. Stanislaus High School Tennis Team and are coached by Labat's father, Myron Labat Sr.

Kellie Murray of Bay St. Louis won third place in the Girls 14-Under Division with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Amanda Herndon of Hattiesburg.

Murray has also been coached individually by Labat for the past several seasons.

MSU, Alabama vie at Scott Field

For only the tenth time in its colorful 106-year history the Mississippi State-Alabama football rivalry unfolds on the MSU campus in Starkville, when the Bulldogs play host to the Crimson Tide Saturday at Scott Field.

Both teams enter the Southeastern Conference battle with 3-4 marks.

Coach Rocky Felker's charges, in one of the team's top outings in recent years, battled second-ranked Auburn down to the wire before bowing 17-16 last week at Scott Field.

The Crimson Tide also endured homecoming woes, dropping a 9-0 decision to Penn State in a defensive struggle in Tuscaloosa.

Kickoff time for the game, originally scheduled for 1:30 p.m. (CST), has been moved to 11:40 a.m. to accommodate a national cable telecast of the game on Atlanta-based cable superstation WTBS.

The veteran broadcast tandem of Bob Neal and Tim Foley will serve as the talent for this weekend's TBS-Sports SEC Game of the Week telecast.

Tigers

"He'll give you 120-135 percent on the practice field and during the ballgame, Brown said of Crawford. "I would like to compliment all the kids."

Brown felt that the team's mental execution had greatly improved for the game against Vancleave. Brown credits the improvement partly to a novel idea by assistant coach Stan Massengale.

Prior to the game, Brown and his assistants, Massengale and Glenn Williams, had the team lie on the floor of the gym and meditate about the game for 45 minutes. No one talked during the session.

After the game many of the players said they felt the exercise had been very beneficial.

"We had a lot of mental errors the last couple of weeks. They were lacking concentration on the field at times, and the homecoming activities had added to their distraction," he said.

Brown had high praise for his assistant coaches. "They have done a great job all year," he said, adding that he thought their contributions had a lot to do with the Pirates having their first winning season in several years.

Pass Christian, 6-3 overall and 2-2 in division play, have had 28 out 36 quarters where the opposing team has not scored. They have also had three shutouts this year.

When asked about the Pirates' chances about making the playoffs, Brown said, "We're not thinking along those lines. If it happens, that's great. If it doesn't, okay. We just need to be ready for Bay St. Louis."

Bay Youth Basketball sets Saturday registration

The Bay Youth Basketball Association will hold basketball registration Saturday, November 3, between the hours of 1-3 p.m. at Bay Middle School.

Boys and girls between the ages of 7-13 years are eligible to participate. A $10 registration fee is required.

Any persons interested in volunteering as coaches, referees, scorekeepers or concessionaires may contact the league director, Robert (Chops) Williams, or call 467-9725.

Eagles finish 3-1 in October

Southern Mississippi's football Golden Eagles were not able to overcome a sluggish first half in Blacksburg, Va., Saturday afternoon, and as a result, lost for the first time in October, 20-16 to a Virginia Tech team, USM head coach Curley Hallman says is much better than its record indicates.

The Eagles did manage to win three of four games in the month of October, and will take a 6-3 record to Lafayette, La., for the next-to-last game of the regular season, Nov. 3. USM then closes the season a week later at Auburn.

The Hokies rode the passing of Will Furrer to a 20-0 halftime lead, and then managed to hold the Golden Eagles to 16 second half points to improve the Tech record to 4-4 before a homecoming crowd of 37,462.

Furrer connected on 18 of 23 first half passes for 204 yards and Tech rushed for another 133 yards to give the Hokies a commanding 33-7 lead in total offense at halftime. Tech also held the ball 19 minutes out of the first 30.

The Eagles, as they have done so often this fall, fought back in the second half, and (in Hallman's words) "put ourselves in a position to win the game."

Roland Johnson closed the gap at the 5:44 mark of the third period with a five-yard scoring run, and USM pulled to within six points early in the final period when Brett Favre hit Eddie Ray Jackson with an eight-yard pass. Jim Taylor converted both PAT's.

That "chance to win the game" came with 2:49 left in the game when Tony Smith turned in another brilliant punt return (29 yards) that left the Eagles with a first down at midfield.

USM managed one first down and moved as close as the Tech 23-yard line before a fourth down Favre pass fell incomplete.

Tech then ran four plays, took an intentional safety and punted to the Eagles with a second left, not enough time for the Eagles to pull another of their not infrequent miracles.

Tech finished with 471 yards to 315 for the Eagles. Furrer accounted for 247 of those yards passing and split end Nick Cullen had a career day as he collected 13 receptions for 170 yards, many of them coming in critical situations.

For the Eagles, Favre finished with 16 completions in 30 attempts for 192 yards and his 49th career TD pass. USM rushed for 123 yards with Johnson leading the way with 55 yards on 12 carries.

Smith had his usual outstanding day with nine rushes for 19 yards, three punt returns for 47 yards and a pair of kickoff returns for 55 more. Eddie Ray Jackson led USM receivers with six catches for 44 yards.

Defensively, press box statistics credited Arnie Williams with 13 total stops and Rod Lynch with 11. The USM defense also came up with six tackles for losses totaling 13 yards, one quarterback sack for three more and Perry Carter was credited with a punt block and Keith Loescher with the recovery of that blocked punt.

Ben Washington added 10 tackles out of the secondary.

"We teach our players to take the season one game at a time, and we now have to get ready for Southwestern Louisiana," said Hallman.

The Cajuns lost 20-6 at Memphis State and will take a 3-5 record into the game. It also will be a third straight homecoming game for the Golden Eagles.

Nationally ranked Wildcats eye South Division title

The 2:30 p.m. clash Saturday in Wesson between the Pearl River Community College Wildcats and the Copiah-Lincoln Wolves will be for the South Division title.

The winner of the contest will stay at home and entertain Itawamba of the North Division in game one of the state playoffs. The loser will finish up the year in third place with no place to go.

Pearl River, with the best overall ledger (8-1) and highest national ranking (top ten) in the state has a 4-1 South Division mark. The single loss came at the hands of Hinds who has 7-2 and 5-1 records.

Hinds has the South's second place spot nailed down because of its win over Pearl River. Co-Lin, who was sixth in the nation until this past week's 31-28 loss to East Mississippi, has a 7-2 overall record and 5-0 mark in the South.

A PRC victory over Co-Lin will give all three teams (PRC-Hinds-Co-Lin) identical 5-1 South records, however, PRC will win the South because it will have the best overall record (9-1).

Of course, if Co-Lin wins the Wolves will make the playoffs because of their 6-0 division record. Hinds has a lock on second place.

First and second places in each division are determined first by division records and then by overall ledgers. Head to head competition comes into play next.

"We have our work cut out for us," said Mike Nelson, the Wildcats' head coach. "The Wolves have excellent talent and they are well-coached."

During the past eight years the Wildcats have won only once over the Wolves and that came back in 1987 when PRC took a 30-13 decision. Last year the Wolves spoiled PRC's homecoming 22-15.

In 1988 Co-Lin won 17-7 and from 1982 through 1986 the Wolves recorded five straight victories.

This past week the Wildcats played without the services of 10 starters, including pre-season All-Americans Michael Toefield and Roy Wayne Jones. Toefield, who is leading the state in individual rushing with 877 yards, should be back for this week's game. Jones will not return because of a broken right ankle.

Pearl River is 4-0 against North Division opponents. The Wildcats defeated the North's number one (Northwest) and number two (Itawamba) teams and have recorded wins over Jones, East Central, Gulf Coast, Southwest, East Mississippi and Holmes.

Co-Lin has lost to Mississippi Delta and East Mississippi while beating Itawamba, East Central, Jones, Northeast, Southwest, Hinds and Mississippi Gulf Coast.

"We should have some of our injured players back," said Nelson. "I know we will need all the help we can get."

This past week defensive end Lance Taylor was named player of the week. Taylor recorded four tackles, two sacks, two hurries and one interception.

Quarterback Tim Birotte was the offensive player of the week as he passed for 180 yards and rushed for 43 yards and one touchdown.

Lloyd Dedeaux, who replaced the injured Reggie Austin, was special team's player as he returned two punts for 41 and 43 yards.

"I know we have had problems of late winning at Co-Lin," said Nelson. "But we have overcome a lot of problems this year and I believe we are ready to give them (the Wolves) a real run for the money."

across the line by 12 pounds per player.

"I am just looking for a good effort from our boys," he remarked. "This game has no value to either team. It's mainly a warmup for the playoffs."

"We are not going to worry about the score; we just want to play hard and end the season on a positive note."

Bay High Players of Week

The Bay High Athletic Club has named Players of the Week for outstanding achievement on offense and defense during Friday night's game against Hancock High School. Number 30 Scott Rogers, left, was chosen Offensive Player of the Week. The senior fullback/linebacker was the leading rusher for the night as well as second lead point scorer on defense. Number 42 Dwayne Antoine was selected Defensive Player of the Week. The freshman linebacker was leading defensive point scorer and registered three solo tackles, two initial hits and four assists. Both team members have been previously selected for Player of the Week honors. The Bay High

New phone features offered to Pass, Diamondhead, county residents

For parents who seem to spend most of the time at home answering calls intended for their teenage children, South Central Bell reports that help is on the way.

The company is introducing a service that will help you know—from the ringing of your telephone—just who those calls are for.

Ringmaster (SM) service allows South Central Bell Pass Christian, Diamondhead and rural Hancock County customers whose numbers begin with 452 and 255 to have up to two additional telephone numbers associated with their home or business telephone line. Calls made to those numbers have a distinctive ring.

"Ringmaster service gives you many of the advantages of having more than one telephone line, without the expense," said Pat Santucci, district manager.

She described some of the ways the new service can be used:

—Doctors, lawyers, accountants and others who frequently receive business or emergency calls at home can identify those calls before answering.

—Roommates can list both names in the telephone directory and differentiate each other's calls.

—Parents calling home to babysitters or latchkey children can have a ring for such calls. Calls to the home's main number can go unanswered.

Customers purchasing Ringmaster service may list their new numbers in the white pages directory, have them listed only with directory assistance, or not have them listed at all.

Ringmaster service also works well with existing Custom Calling Services. For instance, Call Waiting customers will receive a distinctive Call Waiting tone which corresponds to the distinctive ring of each telephone number. And, Call Forwarding customers can designate all three numbers or only their main telephone number to be forwarded.

Ringmaster service is available in two options. Ringmaster with one additional telephone number costs $3.95 a month for residence customers and $6.95 for business customers.

Ringmaster service with two additional telephone numbers will cost $5.95 a month for residence customers and $9.95 for business customers.

Scafidi named vice chairman of Food Service Association

The Mississippi School Food Service Association held its fall District I meeting on Saturday, Oct. 13 at Gulfport High School.

Hancock County School food service staff members attending were Rhea Scafidi, school

Nell Frisbie and Rachael Thiac of Coldwell Banker-Nell Frisbie Inc. and Maggie Hayden of Dantagnan Realty recently attended the 65th annual Mississippi Association of Realtors Convention in Biloxi. The four-day convention featured educational seminars and national speakers and trainers, as well as leaders in the real estate field from throughout Mississippi.

EARTHQUAKE PROTECTION

Earthquakes are a peril that the coast has never been concerned with—up until now. It now seems with all the scientific data available that our area may well be affected by a fault line to our north. Most insurance companies will provide earthquake coverage by an endorsement to an existing Homeowner or Dwelling Fire policy as well as on Commercial buildings. You should call your agent for further information on this valuable coverage.

Our agents would be most happy to discuss this coverage along with your home and commercial insurance needs. Just give us a call at the number listed below, or visit our office at 114 Main St., Bay St. Louis.

BUSINESS

Entrepreneurs workshop set at PRC

Individuals interested in becoming entrepreneurs will have an opportunity to overview the factors involved in starting a small business by attending the "Thinking About Going Into Business" workshop Tuesday, Nov. 6.

The workshop, which is sponsored by the PRC Small Business Development Center of Forrest County, will introduce prospective entrepreneurs to the potential hazards and joys of owning a small business.

The topics will include: how to decide if your business idea is feasible; defining your customer; legal considerations of entrepreneurship; formulating a business plan, federal, state, and local requirements; small business finance; how to approach a lending institution.

While not a comprehensive review of all elements of starting a small business, the "Thinking About Going Into Business" workshop gives the prospective business owners a better sense of direction in their efforts.

It also helps the new business owners make better decisions, and it will enable them to obtain further assistance should they decide to "take the plunge" by starting their own business.

The two and one-half hour session will be in the Technology Building on the Poplarville campus of Pearl River College from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Registration fee is $15 which covers the cost of materials. Interested persons should call Lucy Betcher, SBDC director, at 544-0030.

Betcher said those interested should pre-register by telephone in order to reserve place and materials for the program.

Winston completes course for McDonald's managers

Sharon Winston of Bay St. Louis has been awarded a bachelor of hamburgerology degree from McDonald's Hamburger University in Oak Brook, Ill., for graduating from the university's advanced restaurant operations course.

Hamburger University, founded in 1961, is an accredited educational institution and the advanced training facility of McDonald's Corporation. More than 40,000 alumni have been graduated from the university since its establishment, and business publications have cited it as a model corporate training program.

All McDonald's managers are trained in every aspect of general business management, including customer service, quality control, equipment fundamentals, sanitation and maintenance, personnel practices, communication skills, accounting and marketing.

To attend the university, students must first complete extensive preparatory restaurant training, generally taking two or more years, as well as four other prerequisite courses as part of McDonald's Management Development Program.

The program and courses taught at Hamburger University are approved for 17 credit hours of college credit by the American Council of Education and can be applied toward an associate or baccalaureate college degree. Completion of the Advanced Operations Course is required of all McDonald's restaurant managers, franchisees, mid-management and company executives.

Ziegeler completes training

Wes Ziegeler, owner of Gateway Body Shop, and collision repair technicians Eric Kinard and Charles LaFontaine, have successfully completed I-Car's Advanced Tech Training Program.

I-Car's function is to develop and deliver educational programs for the collision repair and insurance industries, with the purpose of helping technicians keep up to date on the latest repair technology.

Strength Steels," "Working with Modular Glass," "The Latest on Welding," and "What's New in Refinishing."

Also discussed were air bag passive restraints, anti-lock brakes, four-wheel steering and alignment and servicing electronics.

The program's main topics were "Structural Sectioning and Corrosion Protection," "Kinks vs. Bends in High Ethridge to lead manufacturers assn.

Joe Ethridge, president of Struthers Industries Inc. in Gulfport, has been elevated to the position of chairman of the board and chief elective officer of the Mississippi Manufacturers Association.

He assumed leadership of the 1,200-member association during MMA's 39th annual convention on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Ethridge succeeds Tam H. Etheridge, president of Choctaw Maid Farms of Carthage, at the helm of the state's spokesman of manufacturers, fabricators and processors.

Ethridge is a graduate of the Georgia Institute of Technology and holds an MBA from Penn State University. He has worked with several large corporations including Eastman Kodak, Armstrong Cork Company and Sybron Corporation. In 1977, he moved to Gulfport to serve as vice president and general manager of Struthers-Wells in Gulfport.

Ethridge is president of the Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce and is past chairman of the Gulf Coast Private Industry Council and past president of the United Way of Harrison County.

He has held numerous offices with the Manufacturers Association. He is also a registered engineer in both Mississippi and New Jersey and serves as a member of the Technical Advisory committee for Boiler and Pressure Vessel Safety.

In 1988, Ethridge was selected Small Business Person of the Year for Mississippi and also received the Governor's Award for Economic Excellence for the Fifth Congressional District.

He is married to the former Franya Franckiewicz and resides in Bay St. Louis.

Rocks

Case in point: St. Paul swamped Salmen 54-19, SSC barely scraped by Salmen 7-0. "And we felt fortunate to win that game," Lyons commented. "St. Paul is going to be tough to stop. They're about our size, but they appear to be very quick and strong. And they have a veteran team," Lyons said. Last week's win over Pearl River Central, however, should give the Rocks a lot of confidence as they prepare for the Wolves.

"We were astonished with our performance against Pearl River," Lyons said. "We were just hoping for a one-point win because they have such an outstanding quarterback (Bobby Thaxton) and receivers. "We were expecting a real close game," he continued. "But our defense played very well and they gave us good field position. And we played on offense without making many mistakes. "We were able to capitalize on the good field position and put some points on the board early in the game," Lyons said.

And looming on the horizon are the state playoffs. "The playoffs are coming down to the wire," Lyons said. The possible opponents still remain South Pike, McComb or Lawrence County.

"We can only speculate," Lyons commented, "but we're probably going to be playing South Pike—the defending state champions. But we don't know for sure. We're going to have to wait and see what happens Friday," Lyons concluded.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1990-1C

Passin' the night

When the sun goes down...

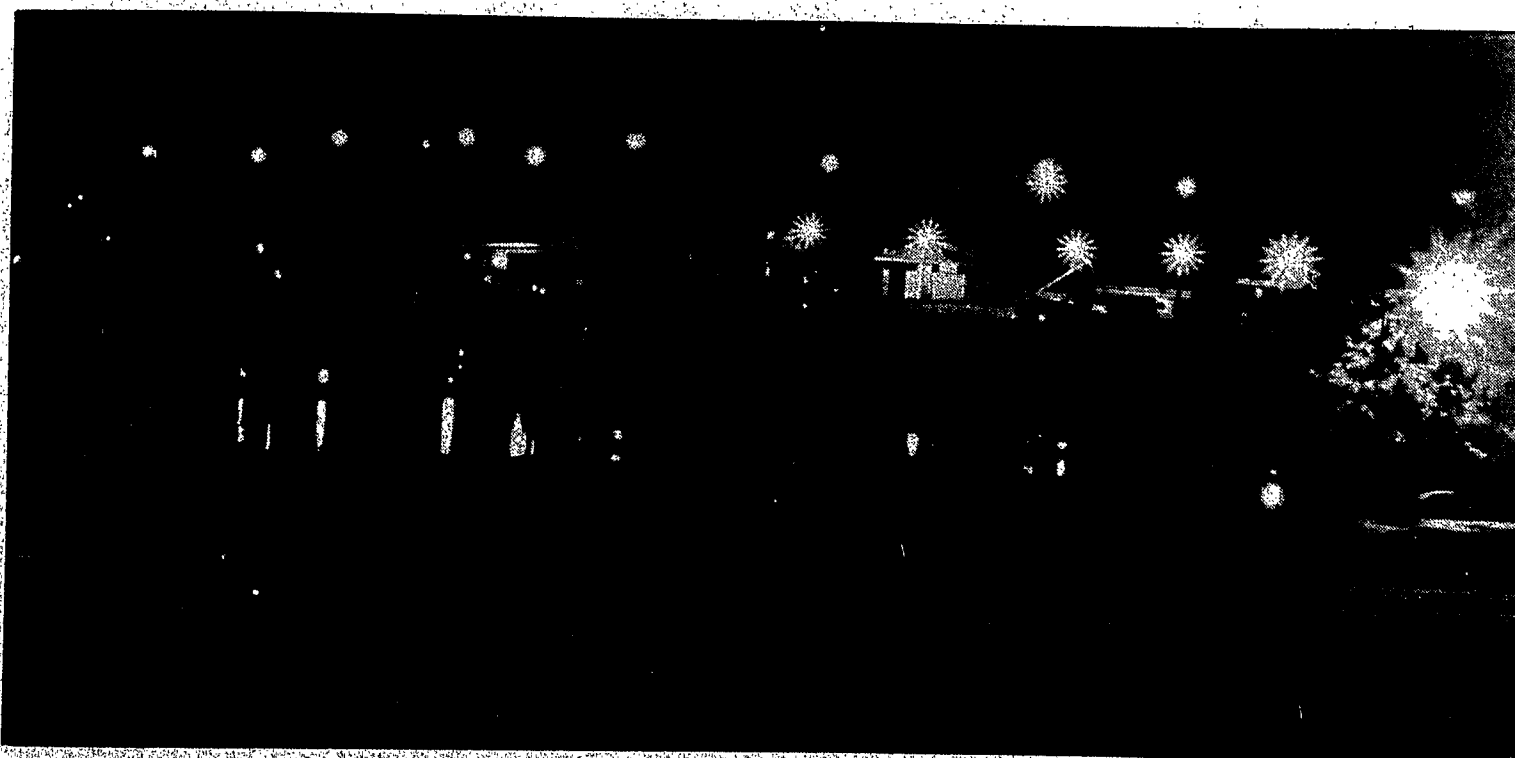

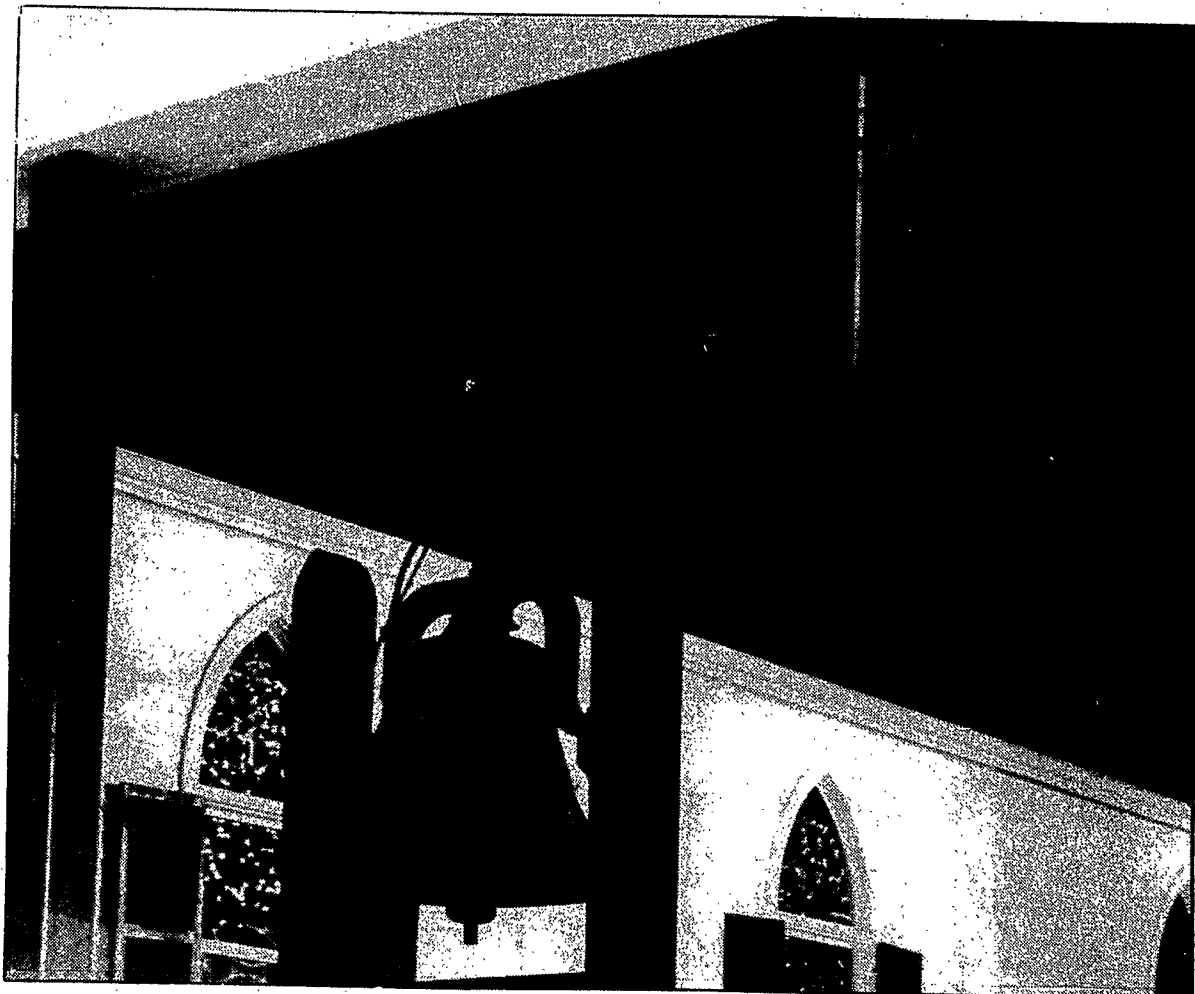

Pass Christian is a quiet, friendly town by day. By night, it loses none of its endearing qualities, but it does gain something. Sparkle.

After dusk, when the satin black of night settles over the landscape, local landmarks assume an enchantment possible only by the light of stars and streetlamps.

The gazebo in War Memorial Park and the bells and steeple at Trinity Episcopal Church take on eldritch qualities that simply aren't seen by sunlight.

As passing vehicles on Highway 90 trail streamers of white, yellow and red light behind them, the boats in the harbor hide in the darkness while the vehicles of cast-net shrimpers and late-night fishers cluster under the streetlights like party-goers seeking the illumination of a bonfire.

Gone is most of the devastation of Hurricane Camille; gone, too, are some of the landmarks that once told people, "You are in Pass Christian." The town lives on, though — friendly by day, dazzling by night, beautiful no matter when you visit it.

St. Stanislaus names Pepsi Students of Month

Pepsi Students of the Month for September at St. Stanislaus High School are seventh grader Matt Holder, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Holder of Long Beach; eighth grader Patrick Cousins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Cousins of Long Beach; freshman Drew Scaife, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Scaife of Bay St. Louis; sophomore Mansell Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bell of Pass Christian; junior Mike Davidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davidge of Baton Rouge, La; and senior Paul Johnson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Paxton Johnson of Thibodaux, La.

The Student of the Month is sponsored by the Pepsi Cola Company, and students are selected on the basis of performance (grades), effort (including attendance), people skills (sportsmanship, cooperation, service), self-control (discipline, respect, courtesy), and initiative (class participation, involvement, generosity).

Hancock High chosen to participate in AIDS education workshop

Hancock High School is one of two Mississippi schools selected to send six school and community representatives to a week-long workshop on "HIV Infection and AIDS Prevention Education for Youth" in San Francisco Nov. 11-17. Also chosen was Rowan Junior High School in Jackson.

Both school districts are among the 28 in the state serving as pilots in a comprehensive health plan for Mississippi schools.

The program, funded by the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control, is designed to share HIV/AIDS education strategies for teenagers developed by the City of San Francisco and its public school system with educators and community leaders from across the nation.

Representing Hancock County at the California workshop will be David Kopf, principal, Hancock High School; health education teachers Larry Johnson and Ann Cuevas, community members Linda Peterson and Edith Back and Betty Brunner of Western Division, South Mississippi AIDS Task Force.

"This is a unique opportunity to obtain the necessary skills for school personnel and community representatives in developing an effective educational program to combat AIDS infection at no cost to the school district," said Terrell Randolph, superintendent of Hancock County School District.

"Our organization, serving Hancock County and the Pass Christian area, is dedicated not only to offering services to persons with AIDS, but also to participating in educational programs aimed at halting the spread of this dread disease for which there is now no cure," Back said.

LOCAL BRIEF

GREAT BOOKS

The Great Books selection for the Thursday, Nov. 1 discussion will be Tocqueville's Democracy in America.

The meetings are at 7 p.m. every first and third Thursday at the Bay St. Louis City County Public Library. Interested participants may call 467-6333.

Leo Acker named scholarship semifinalist

LEO ACKER

Leo Acker, a student at Hancock High School, has been designated as semifinalist in the National Achievement Scholarship Program sponsored by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Acker entered the competition by taking the 1989 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) and requesting consideration in the Achievement Program.

He is one of approximately 1,500 students who will compete for about 725 Achievement Scholarships worth nearly $3,000,000.

He resides in Pearlinton with his grandmother, Beverly Acker.

ANOTHER SATISFIED CUSTOMER FROM BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS.

WE DO A LOT MORE THAN JUST DELIVER.

Almost every hospital has the staff and facilities to safely deliver a normal, healthy baby providing there are no complications. Then, only the very best will do.

Slidell Memorial was the first hospital in St. Tammany to build a Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, and today, we're still the largest in the area and the only local hospital with two full-time Neonatologists, a High Risk Follow-up Clinic and our own Neonatal Transport Team.

THAT'S RIGHT! SAVE FIVE DOLLARS!

New subscribers can save $5.00 off the regular price of subscriptions by acting now during our pre-100th Anniversary sale.

Instead of going to the newsstand where you will spend 25-cents weekly or $26.00 during one year to purchase The Sea Coast Echo, you can save the high cost of gas and an additional $11.00 by subscribing now. We will deliver The Echo to your home if you reside in one of our delivery areas or send it to you by mail twice weekly.

Act now! This sale will be good only through November 19, 1990. You can't beat these 1970s prices anywhere!

SAVE $5.00 OFF REGULAR SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

Free Game Cards!
Visit any of our stores. You have nothing to lose!

Pick your own numbers...

or let the computer terminal pick them for you. When you put your card through the computer terminal, your numbers are recorded instantly for that week's jackpot drawing! Tickets eligible for each Monday's drawing must be validated through the computer terminal by midnight Sunday of that week.

Winning tickets must be redeemed with seven days of each week's drawing.

Instant Winners too!
You could win FREE products, coupons, or even CASH!

Live Drawing on WWL-TV...

Tune in the Live Drawing on WWL-TV (Channel 4) every Monday night between 8:30 and 9:00 p.m. during Wheel Of Fortune. Match five, six or seven numbers in the sequence and you'll be a winner! The winning numbers will be posted in our store the Tuesday following each week's drawing.
